Dear Parents,

The weather forecast is looking sunny and warm for the Bank Holiday weekend, so enjoy a relaxing three day weekend!

Coming home tonight is a very important letter about new GDPR regulations which means we need to ask you to complete a form regarding use of photographs in school. Please read and send the form back to school by Friday 18th May.

We are going to be celebrating the Royal Wedding on Friday 18th May and for lunch we have a traditional British menu on offer. Keep an eye out next week to book your meal and for further details of our celebrations. Friends of the School are also organising a school disco on this day, see below for more details.

Books, books, books!

Over 70 books were sold at the Book Fair last week, which were all half price and we hope you agree that they were good value for money! We held a competition to write a book review to win a £5 gift voucher. There were more than 100 entries but we managed to find 5 worthy winners, who wrote entertaining and informative reviews. Well done to Violette, Thomas H, Amelia K, Chloe Sh and Lucas! Here is Violette's book review of 'The Five Find Outers Mysteries' by Enid Blyton, which she has written in rhyme!

I was keen; the book set the scene, upon my imaginative mind.

The five were put in danger, by a man who was a stranger.

Mr Jenkins, police man, you will find.

A crime was set.

Their criteria was met.

They helped the police just fine.

No more secrets to be told, except this inspiring book will never grow old.

There are twists and turns, and the reader learns, the author knows her subject.

I held my breath, though not a single death, this book is definitely not a reject.

I couldn't wait to turn each page; this book is for every age!

So I would highly recommend this mystery book that has no end, to each and everyone.

It won't be a surprise, when the other book will rise upon the third and fourth one.

So take a trip, you'd bite your lip, just read it, you'll have fun.

The mystery series is the book, just dive inside and take a look.

Friday 11th May is the deadline for returning your School Logo Design entries – remember keep it simple and bold.
